You may have seen or heard news that Governor McAuliffe has scheduled eight education roundtables across the state. The first will be held this Monday, August 31 in Chesterfield County. Please see the schedule of roundtables below. It is our understanding that that governing bodies in the host locality have been invited to attend, and that speakers also have been invited to make presentations. The roundtables are public meetings, and the public will have an opportunity to attend and submit comments through comment cards, but these aren't public hearings.

According to a speech made yesterday by Governor McAuliffe to the joint money committees, the following will be the central questions explored at the meeting:

- What are the barriers to student success in school?
- How can we energize our classrooms with more creativity and innovation?
- Are our teachers getting the kind of support they need to be successful?
